CANADA CABINET MINISTERS NEED U.S. PERMISSION TO VISIT ARCTIC

All Set for Tonight's Opening

Final dabs of paint were put on the sign at the Tillicum Road entrance to the new Kinsmen Gorge Park yesterday by painter Jack Hall while parks foreman Jim McNeill takes a measurement, as preparations were rushed

'I'm Ashamed of It' Minister Declares

OTTAWA (CP)—Northern Affairs Minister Hamilton said Thursday he is "ashamed" that Canadian cabinet ministers have to obtain United States permission to visit the Arctic.

It was a matter of "national chagrin," he said in the Commons, that some Canadian officials have to wait "several months" for U.S. clearance before going to the Arctic.

"I am ashamed of the fact that through circumstances beyond the power of almost any one here we have had to give all responsibility for the defence of our northern area to a friendly power," he said.

"Employees of the government of Canada and even ministers have to go through a formal procedure of getting permission."

"When Canadians have to wait several months to get permission to go and do their duty in their own country at the direction of their own minister, I do not apologize to the House or the country for saying that I am ashamed of the situation."

Opposition Leader Pearson asked whether it was a fact that Canadian ministers and officials have to wait several months before they can get access to establishments on Canadian soil under control of the U.S.

NORTHERN AFFAIRS MINISTER HAMILTON
... Canadian ownership not recognized

Embarrassing Example

"Ministers have very little trouble," Mr. Hamilton said. "Formal request is made more or less as a matter of courtesy and it is handled very quickly. But nevertheless this procedure still has to be followed."

"The situation is different in the case of departmental officials wanting to go there in their line of duty."

"I do not want to embarrass any of my colleagues by referring to a case on record but I do know of one case where the request took so long to approve that the man went somewhere else and got another job and the work has not been done to this day."

"I do not blame anyone for this situation. I have made that very clear. But it is a matter of chagrin."

"I have taken up this matter with our U.S. colleagues and have had very friendly and favorable response."

"Usually the U.S. government is very good once you bring a matter to their attention, but in the efficient and rapid movement of people in developing an area which is completely empty it is so easy to assume something which many people actually believe."

Mr. Hamilton was apparently referring to frequent reports that U.S. citizens in the Canadian Arctic regard the area as U.S. territory. The U.S. built and controls the DEW radar line in the Canadian Arctic.

Liberals Pooh-Poohed

Liberal government spokesmen two years ago pooh-poohed a Canadian Press report that Canadian cabinet ministers must obtain permission from the U.S. government to visit the Canadian Arctic.

Mr. Hamilton said a "leading U.S. authority"—he did not identify him—has held that the U.S. does not recognize ownership of Canadian Arctic islands unless they are occupied.

"Therefore, it is not too difficult for men who are employed by companies working on installations in our northern lands to assume that because there are no Canadians there the lands involved belong to anybody who does happen to be there."

"That is why over the years I have advocated that the only way in which we can hold this northern area for the use of our future generations would be by the effective occupation and use of these areas by Canadians."

Earlier in the debate on northern affairs department estimates Mr. Pearson urged Canada take over "at the earliest possible moment" control of U.S. defence installations in the Canadian Arctic.

He said he realizes the U.S. constructed the installations such as the DEW line, with Canada's agreement and Canadian rights reserved.

"But we should surely aim to take them over, insofar as they continue to be useful, at the earliest possible moment and put them under Canadian control and when it can be done, under civilian control."

Must Establish Claim

Mr. Pearson said at another point that "we must establish beyond any doubt our claim to our Arctic territory."

"This was more important than ever before in view of Russian interest in the polar region and development of U.S. defence activity in the Canadian Arctic."

Mr. Pearson said the voyage of two American submarines under the Arctic ice opens up a new field of Arctic development.

The Arctic was rich in minerals and oil but it was another thing to exploit them economically and deliver them to the markets of the world. However, this might be done by moving oil and minerals to submarine ports where they could be shipped by atomic-powered underwater craft to world markets.

"This may seem to be a pretty remote vision but I know that visions do not intimidate the government," he said.

Referring to U.S. defence installations in Canada, he said the objective should be for Canada to take them over as soon as possible.

He urged an exchange of visits by Canadian and Soviet scientists on northern research and development.

Russia Rattles Sabre

MOSCOW (UPI)—Moscow warned last night that countries bordering on the Near and Middle East might be forced to take action unless U.S. and British troops were withdrawn from Lebanon and Jordan.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda said the Soviet Union "cannot be indifferent to the fact that a serious danger of war is being generated in the immediate vicinity of its borders."

It said that "it is natural that in these circumstances countries bordering on the Near and Middle East should be forced to take steps to guarantee their own and general security."

"The people of these countries believe that the growing tension in that region (Middle East) can be removed only if foreign troops are withdrawn," Pravda said.

Hurricane Reported

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The season's first Atlantic hurricane, with winds up to 145 miles an hour, was reported Thursday about 900 miles east of Martinique, French Antilles.

The Puerto Rico weather bureau said the hurricane, named Cleo, is moving west northwest at about 17 miles an hour and has a well-defined centre about 15 miles across.

50-50 Chance In Moon Shot

WASHINGTON—A top air force general said yesterday the United States has a "50-50" chance of blasting an instrument-carrying robot to the vicinity of the moon in the first lunar probe launching expected next week.

Bombs Slipped In Mail Slots

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—Three home-made bombs, slipped into the mail slots of buildings in three communities, went off within a half-hour Thursday in a continuation of terrorism that has long plagued British Columbia's southern interior.

The RCMP considered rushing reinforcements to the interior from coastal points to meet the new outbreak of violence.

No one was injured, nor were there any immediate arrests.

But assistant commissioner C. W. Harrison of the RCMP said the bombs were "similar to those used in previous explosions in which we suspect the Sons of Freedom Doukhobors."

DAMAGE EXTENSIVE

Explosions hit post offices at Osoyoos and Oliver and a professional building in Vernon. In each case damage was extensive.

Mayor Frank F. Becker of Vernon asked federal authorities to augment a $25,000 reward now offered by the provincial government for information leading to the conviction of terrorists.

KARLIER OUTBURSTS

The first reward was offered after a series of violent outbursts this year in which railway tracks, communications lines and buildings were blasted by terrorist bombs.

Tracking dogs and police in the Penticton area, are being used to hunt a man in connection with a murder near here and the shooting of a policeman, were diverted to the Oliver and Osoyoos districts.

Wrong Report Stalled Search

Hope Very Faint For 99 Lost In Air Disaster

SHANNON, Ireland (UPI)—Hope was virtually abandoned yesterday for the 99 persons aboard a new York-bound KLM Royal Dutch Airlines Super Constellation which crashed in the stormy North Atlantic in the worst single commercial airliner disaster in history. (See page 3.)

Meanwhile, a KLM spokesman said the search for the plane was delayed for more than two hours because of an erroneous radio report from Gander, Nfld. airport.

The spokesman said Gander reported that radio contact had been made with the airliner.

The spokesman gave this time-table in Greenwich Mean time (six hours ahead of EDT):

3:05 a.m.—Plane airborne after a 47-minute stop at Shannon.

3:40 a.m.—Normal callback received at Shannon ocean control.

4:50 a.m.—No report received at routine time when plane should have been in position 15 degrees west about 100 miles off Shannon. "Uncertainty phase" of accident drill put into effect.

5:15 a.m.—Emergency procedure operated.

6:30 a.m.—Gander reported radio contact with the Super Constellation and emergency procedure was called off.

9:30 a.m.—The Gander message was cancelled after there was no further radio contact.

9:30 a.m.—Full emergency procedure was reinitiated.

The spokesman said Shannon had repeatedly called "607 Echo, 607 Echo"—the plane's call sign—in an effort to trace the aircraft and Gander probably mistook that for a call from the plane itself.

Asian Flu Expected Again This Year

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—World Health Organization experts warn that a new Asian flu outbreak could be expected this year—but it will be milder than the killer epidemic of 1957.

Experts from Britain, the United States, Holland, India, Japan and Russia are meeting here to pool results of worldwide studies of the 1957 flu outbreak and plan a defence system for 1958.

Although there were weaknesses at the weigh-in, the fish itself has since been dressed and sold to a packing plant.

Campbell was on a commercial fishing trip at the time he caught the coho, but was using a rod and regular coho gear.

World Record Coho Landed

A 72-year-old Victoria man has landed a coho salmon that may stand up as a world record. Walker W. Campbell, 1740 Fort Street, boated a 32-pound coho Tuesday morning off Secretary Island near Sooke, and weighed it in at Sooke Seafood Products. Present record-holder is Mrs. Patricia Hallberg of Victoria, who caught a 31-pounder in Cowichan Bay in 1947.

However, Campbell may have some difficulty in having his fish accepted as a record-breaker.

A Fisheries Department official who inspected the fish said that there is no doubt that it is a coho salmon.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

A CERTAIN Victoria merchant is in the habit of tucking his cash and business papers in the top pocket of a sports shirt, his favourite attire at work.

Recently, while he was relaxing after a hard day, his wife seized his shirt and, without checking the pocket, tossed it in the washing machine.

By the time the man caught up with his shirt, most of the contents of the pocket had been reduced to a pulp. Sixty-three dollars in cash was soaking wet, but intact. Banknotes are made of especially tough paper in order to stand punishment.

But promissory notes totalling about $1,000 were mashed into porridge—except for half of one note that the merchant managed to retrieve.

Some of the notes have six weeks or two months yet to run. My friend isn't keen to have news of his mishap spread around. He knows that his debtors are honest men. It's just that if they heard that the notes had been destroyed, they might forget to pay.

The man's name is... no, I don't think I'll tell you, for a few weeks.

While Shawnigan Lake's efficient volunteer fire department was busy trying to quell a bush fire some distance from the village last Saturday, another fire broke out in the garbage dump.

The new fire threatened some bushes and could have spread to houses.

Wives Equal to Challenge

Wives of volunteer firemen and other women of the district were equal to the challenge. They hooked together 11 garden hoses and doused the blaze.

Members of Shawnigan's female fire department feel quite proud of themselves. No doubt they had already had experience, though, putting out the burning toast.

Water safety section of B.C. Safety Council has approved the idea of limiting water skiers to special areas considered safe for fast boats.

Delegates from water skiing clubs suggested the idea themselves. They want to see clubs apply to local authorities for special skiing areas in sea and lakes.

Not only water skiers, but all power boats should be operated within specified areas, and in some places, at specified times. And drivers of power boats should be required to have licences, like drivers of cars.

When they do select special areas for power boat men, small lakes with houses around the edge should be ruled out completely.

Premier Scores Critics of 'Debt'

Premier Bennett yesterday blasted critics of the government's debt reduction program. "We're getting out of debt so we can do great things for the people of B.C.," he told reporters. "This Social Credit government, which I have the honor to lead, is not boomers but we're great expansionists... and the next six years are going to be greater still."

At March 31 last the net provincial debt stood at $55,587,000 but contingent liabilities, which many critics say should be added to the debt, have risen to almost $100,000,000.

Premier Bennett, who doubles as finance minister, argued yesterday that these guaranteed borrowings of government agencies and school boards can in no way be described as part of B.C.'s debt.

Critics say that the 50 per cent share paid by the government towards school construction and the 2½ per cent payment towards the Toll Bridges and Highways Authority should be part of B.C.'s net debt.

Not so, says the premier. "The government would have to pay a percentage of the school costs every year anyway so this is merely a current cost to the government" while the 2½ per cent grant to the toll bridges authority is paid for by increased gasoline tax brought in as a result of people being able to travel more in the province.

Scientists Due Home Soon

VANCOUVER (CP)—An RCAF Canoe amphibian left nearby Sea Island base Thursday on a two-week, 8,000-mile journey to weather stations, RCMP outposts and trading posts from Alaska to Greenland. Main objective of the flight is to pick up four scientists who have spent more than a year at Hazen Lake, on Ellesmere Island, making weather studies for the International Geophysical year.

Seattle Sewage Plant Tour Set

A modern sewage treatment plant of the type proposed for Saanich's planned Cadboro Bay-Gordon Head sewer area will be inspected at Seattle by councilors and representatives of Queen Alexandra Solarium.

The Aug. 18 inspection trip was planned after Saanich council discussed with Solarium directors the purchase of a parcel of land on Arbutus Road for a site for the proposed plant.

Saanich Reeve George Chatterton said the Solarium property was one of several possible sites being studied by the council and that the Solarium directors had been asked to inspect the Seattle plant before making a decision.

He said there was nothing objectionable about a treatment plant of the kind in use in Seattle. There are only two of the type in Canada so far and they are "in the East," he said.

City General Camp Chief

OTTAWA (CP)—Brig. Robert L. Purves, 45, of Victoria will be appointed commander of Camp Borden, Ont., Sept. 1, army headquarters reported yesterday.

Commissioned in the militia in 1937, he served overseas during the Second World War with armored units. He was promoted to the rank of brigadier in 1953.

Congress Urged To Wipe Out Surrender Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Chairman Richard B. Russell of the Senate Armed Services Committee called on Congress yesterday to crack down on any defence department studies dealing with a possible U.S. surrender in any atomic war.

Russell spoke out in the midst of a furor that raged from the White House to Congress after it was disclosed that some kind of "surrender study"—or studies—had been prepared at the Pentagon's request.

Russell, who said any such report would be a blow to American morale, offered an amendment to an appropriations bill to cut off funds for any study on "when and how the government of the United States should surrender this country to its enemies."

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson said he hoped the senate would approve Russell's amendment unanimously.

The White House said President Eisenhower considered the study "ridiculous" if it actually did consider the conditions under which this country might give up. The president de-

UNTHINKABLE

Members of Congress of both parties agreed it was unthinkable that the United States ever would consider surrendering, especially in advance. Most took the position that the study was out of place because its very existence implied such a possibility.

Several studies dealing with conditions under which various nations have surrendered in past wars and the circumstances under which such action might be taken in the atomic age.

The Rand Corp., a private non-profit making research organization, said it had prepared a study for the Pentagon which resulted in a book titled "Strategic Surrender," by Paul Keck-Skelett. It said the study was started in 1951.

'Pay Tax For Hall'

Acting Mayor Millard H. Mooney said yesterday the city should help the Victoria West Community Centre by giving the group the equivalent of its school taxes.

This year for the first time, under new provisions of the Municipal Act the group must pay $172 in school taxes on the city-owned hall it occupies. A meeting of the group has been called by its president, Charles Banfield, who said yesterday it could not afford to pay.

Talking Politics

Kidd Bandwagon Is Crowded

KIDD'S CAMPAIGN: Even some of the most ardent Deane Finlayson supporters are saying his gamble to hang on to the B.C. Conservative leadership may have already been lost.

They point out that the meteoric campaign of geologist

Dr. Desmond Kidd, which is gaining momentum every day, is responsible for Mr. Finlayson's troubles. Before Dr. Kidd came along a few weeks ago there appeared little chance that anyone would wrest Mr. Finlayson's crown away.

On the other side of the fence, the "Cap" Kidd camp is jubilant at the way things are going and claims that victory for their man is now certain, with the only real opposition coming from some Vancouver Island constituencies.

Even so, they expect Island ridings to split the total vote for the two men about 50-50 when the voting is held at the Tory convention in Vancouver next month, and they say that a solid swing to Kidd from the mainland assures his victory.

The big point in the battle has been the growing conviction that Mr. Finlayson would be unable to lead the party to victory at the polls in the next election.

PLUGGING THE LEAK: Premier Bennett has successfully thwarted reporters from obtaining an indication of how revenues are coming in this year.

In the last two years a good indication of the province's financial situation could be obtained from the publication entitled "A Review of Resources, Production and Governmental Finances."

Reporters were able to scan down the revised figures of revenue for the year ending the previous March 31—figures that would not normally be obtainable until the following public accounts next year.

This year, however, the premier, acting as minister of finance, ruled that revised figures be omitted.

VALUABLE ASSET: Premier Bennett said yesterday that the government could sell the Pacific Great Eastern Railway for a $65,000,000 profit if it wanted to. But the PGE is not for sale. In fact he said the railway will be extended north of Fort St. John and Dawson Creek in

Worst in Commercial Aviation

Explosion, Engine Trouble Guessed Causes of Crash

SHANNON, Ireland (AP)—A after making its first check call back to the Shannon airport, 99 persons plunged mysteriously into the squall-swept Atlantic Thursday in the worst single-plane commercial air disaster in history.

There was speculation there might have been an explosion aboard the KLM aircraft. This was fed by the fact the crew had not radioed a report of trouble.

Initial hopes that some survived faded.

FIVE BODIES

Two French trawlers recovered five bodies and several life rafts from waves pitching about the debris of the $2,000,000 air liner 130 miles off Ireland's west coast.

Other craft, surface and air, sped to join the search.

There was confusion and alarming talk about the cause of the disaster, the first to hit a regularly scheduled airline over the Atlantic since the war.

HAPPENED FAST

Liam Melling, KLM station manager, said: "Whatever happened, it is obvious it happened very quickly. After all, four engines and four radios do not cut out immediately."

Asked if their might have been sabotage, Melling said: "Your guess is as good as mine."

The giant plane, on an economy flight with seats for 95 passengers, was about 90 minutes out of Shannon on a trip from Amsterdam to New York when it went down before dawn. There were no Canadians aboard.

Melling said it evidently crashed almost immediately.

$600 Stolen In City Thefts

Two thefts, totalling more than $600, were reported to city police yesterday.

Les Blow, of Les Blow's Motorcycle Sales, 2647 Douglas, reported that $365 had disappeared from the firm's safe overnight. About $100 in cash and a like amount in cheques were left behind.

Ken Williams, 532 Selkirk, the clerk, told police he put all the money in the safe at 6 p.m. Wednesday.

W. W. Cuthbert, Chestnut Hill, Mass., reported theft of an article of luggage from the Empress Hotel lobby. He said it contained clothing and a movie camera and equipment, estimating total value at $250.

Manitoba to Try Out Tree Fireproofing

WINNIPEG (CP)—Manitoba's forestry branch is to test a chemical-sodium calcium borate—that stops trees from burning. Chemical will be added to water, four pounds for each gallon, poured into plastic bags and dropped from planes on burning areas.

Chief protection officer A. W. Braine says the chemical protects the tree even after the water has evaporated.

'Ultimatum' To Teachers

An ultimatum must now be made by the B.C. Teachers' Federation, provincial cabinet ruled yesterday.

The compulsory membership provision was withdrawn during the wage dispute between teachers and provincial school boards earlier this year when it appeared some teachers would withhold their services unless pay boosts were approved.

At that time Education Minister Leslie Peterson promised that the provision would come into force as soon as he was assured all schools would be open in September.

PENAL COLONY

Brisbane, Australia, was first settled as a penal colony in 1825.

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (CP)—Commission director Lloyd Royal said spawning escapement through Johnstone Strait announced Thursday closure of has been almost all and the all Sockeye salmon fishing for closure is needed to permit seven days in the Strait of 200,000 spawning salmon to Juan de Fuca Sound, south of the Fraser River. He said of Georgia and Fraser also there is no sign yet of the automated large Atlantic River.

A meeting of fishermen at this border city was told by Mr. Royal said a change in commission representatives the ocean currents has raised water closure has been ordered because of unpredictable events normal and has delayed the currents.

These conditions have resulted in 38 per cent of the Fraser River salmon run taking the northern route around Vancouver Island through Johnstone Strait instead of taking the southern Strait of Juan de Fuca route and has delayed normal Sockeye arrivals by 12 days.

Fishing in Canadian treaty waters will be closed for gillnetters until 6 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 20, and for purse seiners until 6 a.m. Aug. 21, the commission announced.

An Appeal with a Foundation

IT restores much to the wider concept of Canada as a land of opportunity for all of its people to hear of the appeal made on behalf of Canada's native tribesmen in the Senate this week by Hon. James J. Gladstone, a Blackfoot Indian. His plea was short, but its message sincere. Help the Indians to assimilate themselves into the national structure and life of the Dominion by teaching them the sociological, technical and other things they need to know, and subsidize them where necessary in order to give individuals their start. So said Senator Gladstone, with a lifelong knowledge of the tribesmen and three score and ten years behind him.

It is probable that almost everyone in the nation would agree with the aim of that appeal: a new deal and a fairer one for the members of the ancient culture which western civilization supplanted. Since treaty times there have been the Indian reserves in Canada. In recent years a dwindling band of tribesmen have occupied them, still the wards of the Crown. Outside the reserves many Indians, indeed perhaps most, have picked out their own lives in the western mode against handicaps which are yielding slowly, where at all.

The Indian needs acceptance rather than patronage. He seeks a way of life which he can follow on his own initiative, and the necessary education to ensure that. The basis of Senator Gladstone's plea on behalf of the native brotherhoods was for intelligent guidance, training and assimilation into modern ways. There was no request for charity or for spoon-fed treatment in the restricted confines of the reserves; but for the opening of the door into a wider, natural life for Canada's first pioneers.

There are many people in this country who believe that a re-examination of the Dominion's Indian policy is, and has long been, overdue. No body of men and women can be kept even partially in isolation and at the same time become one with the nation in its customs and ways. Senator Gladstone indicated he believed that tuition could do much to bridge the present gap, and that beyond that there must be a desire to accept and encourage the Indians on their way up to a fuller, freer and participating citizenship in the nation.

It was quietly said, but it rang true. One trusts that action will follow at Ottawa.

Train Travel at a Low Ebb

THE pattern of passenger transit is in the throes of changes undreamt of even a decade ago. The multiplicity of private cars has seriously affected bus transportation; the growth of air travel has made deep inroads into passage by sea. Now there is the word of Mr. Donald Gordon, the CNR's hard-headed president, that passenger trains are doomed. Nowhere on this continent do they pay their way, and only on short-haul lines is there any chance of breaking even.

Evolution embracing new habits of travel are the cause. Putting it as bluntly as he can Mr. Gordon says that jet aircraft "will lick the pants off us" in any competition for long-distance passenger traffic. Since the state underwrites the losses of the CNR his opinion is bound to revise many notions extant and cause considerable concern. Yet Mr. Gordon is opposed to any supine acceptance of deficits and rightly thinks that the CNR should be run on a competitive basis.

In spite of the best service that can be devised the CNR's trans-continental trains are losing money, simply for lack of customers. Anyone who has crossed Canada by air and noted the thronging air terminals can readily confirm the transfer of preference to aerial travel. The pattern is similar across the line, where according to Mr. Gordon every railroad company would gladly get out of the passenger business. For its part the CNR is prepared to discontinue passenger trains wherever it can while respecting its obligation in areas where no alternative means of travel is available. Only on city-to-city or short-haul routes is there prospect of the CNR making ends meet.

He points to the irony of railroading creating the bed it now lies on. Railways open up new country, communities come into being, and bus, truck and air companies follow in due course to take the cream of railroad passenger traffic. That is inherent in human ways, however, and it is a process which cannot be stopped. One presumes that the CPR faces the same prospect as does the CNR else Mr. Gordon's views suffer diminution. They seem sufficiently realistic however to suggest drastic changes affecting the livelihood of thousands of Canadians.

Bad Advertisement for Victoria

YESTERDAY morning the stench from the mudflats below the Causeway, exposed by the tide in all their ugliness, was enough to turn the strongest stomach. It was not confined to the vicinity of the Inner Harbor but drifted through the city to set noses twitching with disgust far from the point of origin. Farther north Rock Bay mudflats added their noisome contribution. Hundreds of tourists departing by Port Angeles ferry when the smell was at its worst must have been glad to put the offensive waterfront behind them for the clean air of the strait outside the harbor.

Can nothing be done to correct this intermittent fouling of the air? What causes it? Mud and silt deposited in places remote from civilization don't smell like that, so there must be some kind of discharge into the harbor to create it along the Causeway. If so, can it be stopped? The evil odor may or may not be injurious to health, but it certainly is a poor advertisement for Victoria, "the city of flowers." There is little point in placing floats in the Inner Harbor and encouraging visiting yachtsmen to lie there when the low-tide stench is enough to sicken them.

The cure apparently lies in dredging, which is a federal responsibility; but unfortunately it is not quite as simple as it sounds. The city engineering department is apprehensive that if the harbor were deepened enough to stop exposure of the mudflats the foundations of the Causeway would be weakened dangerously. Cost of building an outer retaining wall to support the Causeway is estimated at close to a quarter of a million dollars, and in present circumstances such an undertaking would be beyond the City's means.

Has the City explored the possibility of inducing the provincial government to take over or assist with the cost of shoring up the wall as part of the capital improvement plan? Such a project could be rated as an improvement of the highest order. Alternatively the City, if it has not already done so, should ascertain the origin of the pollution and see if there is a practicable way of getting rid of it.

Interpreting the News

UN Secretary Influential

By LLOYD McDONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DAG HAMMARSKJÖLD'S quiet interventions in United Nations disputes are often temporarily obscured by such top-level public utterances as President Eisenhower's speech in the UN emergency General Assembly. But the continued work of the Swedish diplomat is regarded as of much significance.

By virtue of his international position as chief of the UN secretariat, Hammarskjöld is considered by all sides as being above politics, whereas the pronouncements of the major heads of states in the UN often result in verbal brickbats.

Hammarskjöld's position of respect on both sides of the Iron Curtain was attested to by Russia's renewed support when the secretary-general's five-year term came up for renewal in the Security Council last year. His predecessor, Trygve Lie of Norway, had been ousted because the Soviets voted against him on the ground he favored the West.

Hammarskjöld has handled some touchy situations without leaving himself open to Western accusations of leaning over backwards to the Communist view. Hence the adverse reaction in President Nasser's controlled press to the secretary-general's blueprint for a long-term Middle East settlement came as something of a surprise.

While the Western view was that Hammarskjöld had offered Nasser, in effect, an olive branch by taking note of the rise of Arab nationalism, Nasser's impression apparently was that the UN chief was overstepping his position by suggesting pledges from the Arab states of non-interference in the affairs of other Middle East countries.

Legally, it should be noted, the secretary-general is not authorized to offer anything to anyone, although this is usually the way his occasional public statements in the General Assembly or the Security Council are interpreted. He is scrupulous in observing the wordings of his statements, but because of his continued personal dealings with heads of opposing delegations, his influence goes far beyond his official position.

The UN charter states that the secretary-general "shall not seek or receive instructions from any government or any other authority external to the UN organization." In return, "each member of the United Nations undertakes to respect the exclusively international character of the responsibilities of the secretary-general and his staff, and not to seek to influence them in the discharge of their responsibilities."

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings,"
By TOM TAYLOR

I AM often intrigued when authors say the characters they create run away from them and do things their authors never intended, but not being a novelist I cannot contest such apparent contradiction. I think I know what they mean, however. In his separate realm a columnist frequently begins a column and is surprised at what it contains by the time he ends it.

Just whether this is due to the typewriter rather than to the person who operates it I haven't quite decided. There are days when a typewriter seems to be an instrument of torture, as a writer in Maclean's says this week, although happily not always. And why after all blame the typewriter, which until the keys are punched is as static as a columnist's mind on his bad days. Supposedly a painter eyes his brush, and a carpenter his hammer, with equally mixed feelings.

The Maclean's man does concede that once he had a typewriter which returns only pleasant memories, but this was because he sold it and on the proceeds enjoyed a cheap fortnight's stay in Yugoslavia and that is hardly germane to our discussion. Nearer the nub of things would be the Toronto columnist who took one look at his typewriter, and then retrieved his hat and walked out of his office for good. It wasn't really the machine to blame, though; just the idea of writing yet another column. He got over his malaise, and as far as I know still sits down daily in front of another typewriter.

The average machine, of course, is an innocent victim of the writing business. It is blamed for a lot of things, including the mistaking of the person who coins words on it, and it can't answer back except by sticking its keys or refusing to turn its roller. I have personal cause to believe it does this on purpose, too, especially when forced to produce none too distinguished copy.

This may be why some scribblers of note eschew it altogether. Beverly Baxter I think it is who swears by the pen, and not long ago Eric Nicol backed this method of composition in a panegyric sentence. Mr. Nicol can say such delicious things with tongue in cheek, however, he may have been pulling my leg along with other readers. He always sounds as though his typewriter ran on ball-bearings.

It is true enough nevertheless that except to the touch artist who shuts his eyes and lets his eloquence flow unseen from brain to fingertips, a typewriter can interpose a road-block. Thought flows to the end of a pen more easily than it does to typewriter keys when the thinker has to keep one eye on the mechanics of operation. The cure for this would be for the latter to learn to touch-type, naturally, but few there seem to be, including this scribbler, willing to go back to school.

It is in an endeavor to be fair, therefore, that the foregoing lines have been written. Man makes the machines and he has small warrant for complaint when they act up through inept use of them. In today's instance also the typewriter has served to supply material for a column and that is of significant merit I assure you. Perhaps because of the nature of the subject, too, I am able to report that this time my typewriter cooperated in most admirable fashion.

The Banks Go Modern

By RICHARD L. THOMAS

AT the end of the First World War there were still some hundreds of private banks in Britain: one or two in every provincial town. Mostly the bank would be a partnership of two or three wealthy citizens in the community, and their relationship with their customers was friendly and intimate. It was the end of an era.

Industry expanded. Efficiency demanded bigger units and the local banker, with limited resources, could not supply requirements. At first local firms amalgamated to provide greater resources, and in the end there emerged what is now known as the "Big Five" in British banks which could be more accurately described as the big seven. Two have grown up since the phrase was coined.

Today British banking is in the hands of possibly 200 people in the City of London and their influence extends to many other banks abroad and in the dominions. They have been conservative in their attitude and the functions of banks have been severely limited. Compared with Canadian banks, British banks have been regarded as notoriously "stuffy." Technically (though not actually) overdrafts have always been repayable on demand, acceptable securities have been limited, and it has been regarded as unethical to look for business—a point in recent years honored in the breach. Advertising by British banks has been a very modern development—and it is still very conservative.

One of the reasons has been the separation of conventional current accounts and savings banks accounts. The trading banks have been a "closed shop" as far as cheque accounts are concerned. The customer in Britain cannot draw a cheque on a savings account.

Most of the savings bank business of the United Kingdom is concentrated in the post office, with more than 20,000,000 accounts, and in the trustee savings banks, which are a quasi-government organization lending its deposits to the national debt commissioners and paying management expenses on the difference received and the interest paid. The trading banks do have savings accounts but they are not encouraged.

Only during the last year has a British bank been guilty of the exhibiting of an illuminated sign outside its premises, and it is a very modest affair of profound dignity. It was perhaps the first sign of change. Now a major revolution is in progress.

The trading banks are falling over each other to get into the hire-purchase business. Millions of pounds are changing hands and the conventional British banker is going into time payment in a big way. This in turn may well change the pattern of the hire purchase business. It may mean the end of door to door collections and expensive remittances by post. It is probable that before very long instalments will be payable at branch banks, of which there are more than 15,000 in the United Kingdom.

Another development is the personal loan business. Whilst the British banker has never objected to providing a few pounds to tide over a customer who finds that he has too much month left at the end of his money, it has not been anxious to consider personal overdrafts in the absence of conventional banking security. That may alter and loans may be forthcoming on automobiles and personal property as well as houses, insurance policies and the like.

It may also mean substantial benefits to the customer. At present hire-purchase companies pay substantial rates of interest on deposits—up to 7 per cent—and this in turn means that time-payment customers have to pay from 9 to 12 per cent for accommodation.

It reflects the biggest policy change in the history of British banking—a recognition that too much financing has passed from the hands of the banks, that time-payment at last has become "respectable."

Waitresses Shun the Sack

NEWS has come from the garment industry that the sack dress has been having its troubles making its way as a uniform for waitresses. A New York hotel, which gave it a three-month tryout, has abandoned it because it "did not go over favorably with the majority of diners—men and women."

Note that significant phrase—"men and women." Female diners no less than the male apparently found the chemise an unsatisfactory uniform to contemplate.

Unfortunately the reports do not indicate whether or not these female diners were themselves clad in sack dresses and, consequently, whether their reactions to the similar garb of the waitresses were based on rivalry or envy.

—NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

ON TV there was a panel of young men discussing Canadian culture or some such subject. Four of them were agreeably stumbling young fellows, serious, brainy, but not too articulate. They had good sound opinions, but had no great gift for expressing them. The fifth member was obviously the bright lad of the party. He was at ease before the cameras. He had a senior air. The others seemed to defer to him. I bet at college he is a figure of importance on the campus.

But the panel discussion had not gone on five minutes before the impression grew that everything the bright, urbane young intellectual was saying was a quotation. Within ten minutes he had thrown in half a dozen of those high-level clichés, those witty but sadly classic allusions which a man with a good memory can pick up in the course of a college career, thus equipping himself with what sounds like intelligence, but is wholly second-hand.

When the program ended you had a very warm feeling for the four sincere originals among the boys; and you could not help but reflect what an awful bore the bright lad would be by the time he was thirty, and stuffed stiff with the hackneyed acintillation of the ages.

Turkey Forges Ahead

By COLIN JACKSON, from London

TURKEY is one of the most important nations in the Middle East today, a country that since the Second World War has had an outstanding record of opposition to tyranny wherever it may have occurred.

To begin with, the Turkish people had to withstand several attempts by Russia to destroy their independence. After 1945 Marshal Stalin demanded the cession of the north-eastern provinces of Turkey to the Soviet Union. He demanded a joint Russian-Turkish military command. In addition, he requested that Russia be given control over the vital Turkish Straits dominating Istanbul. All these orders, from a country many times the size of Turkey, the Turkish people rejected. Today they still prize their freedom in the face of continuing Soviet attacks on their nation's independence.

Turkey played, in the service of the United Nations, a part exceeded only by that of the United States and the United Kingdom in helping Korea to resist Communist aggression. In that campaign, Turkey had a record which the United Nations itself publicly acclaimed.

Now, in the Baghdad Pact Organization, the people of Turkey are again to the fore in resisting aggression. The Baghdad Pact says that member states will co-operate for mutual security and defence. Today, the Turks have an army 400,000 strong and an air force of 1,000 planes to help in this mutual defence program. This Turkish fighting force would be a military element that would have to be reckoned with.

In the Turkish role of defence in the Middle East, Baghdad Pact members outside the region are helping the government in Ankara. For example, the United Kingdom has lent over $3,000,000 to the Turkish authorities to enable them to re-equip the Turkish navy with modern destroyers.

But Turkey, for all its reputation in defending the independence of itself and its friends, is also a nation with great plans for economic advance. During the last few years, it has pressed ahead with a great variety of projects for agricultural and industrial progress. The scale and imagination of these plans are not exceeded by any nation in the Middle East.

In all this advance Turkey has been able to call on friends in London and Washington. The United Kingdom, for example, has undertaken to equip several laboratories in faculties of engineering and physics in the Middle East Technical University at Ankara. Britain has also offered to provide instructors for this university in the fields of both electrical engineering and engineering physics. With such help from London, the present advances of Turkey in engineering will be not only consolidated, but accelerated.

Dr. Kestelli from Turkey is the deputy secretary-general of the Baghdad Pact, directing the economic committee. When I met him this spring, this leading Turkish economist was at work on various projects for agriculture, health and communications.

For example, Dr. Kestelli told me that the Government in Ankara has plans for expanded road communications between Turkey and Iran. In this way, these two important nations of the Middle East will have a chance, through their associations in the Baghdad Pact, to improve trade and mutual prosperity.

Again Turkey has been helped in the agricultural field through aid from the Baghdad Pact nuclear centre. One of the greatest threats to Turkey's food supply in the past has been the menace of sunpest. A British member of the nuclear centre is now at work on research whereby in time the pest can be controlled and entirely destroyed.

The pact nuclear centre is also providing equipment for Turkey to set up laboratories for testing radioactive isotopes for medical use; also, equipment providing isotopes to test road conditions is coming from the nuclear centre. This is particularly important for Turkey with its widely-varying sub-soil conditions.

To give a further example of the Baghdad Pact assistance to Turkey and its social advance, Britain is today helping the government in Ankara in its campaign against tuberculosis. Small static centres are being set up in Turkey with equipment supplied from the United Kingdom. The advantages of such aid cannot be measured in any given set of financial figures. But undoubtedly such a partnership of aid in health between Turkey and Britain will enable many lives to be saved.

So today Turkey, although still threatened from the outside, may feel proud of its advance in raising internal standards of living. And in this advance the Turkish people can count on help not only from the partners in the pact region such as Iran and Pakistan, but also from its partner in Europe, the United Kingdom.

Letters to the Editor

Fewer Ferries

The reports to the effect that the Victoria-Vancouver midnight runs of the B.C. Coast Steamship Service may end this fall and that the Seattle service may come to an end should not occasion any surprise.

For a long time now the CPR has given every indication that it is not interested in anything but the Vancouver-Nanaimo service, and this has been evidenced in several ways.

There have been no plans to replace the service between Victoria and Vancouver. The service could not be maintained as in the past. These vessels are nearly 30 years old and in the opinion of a great many well-informed people they have about run their course. The sales of the Queen of the North (ex-Princess Norah) and the Princess of Alberni are significant, and it is my guess that the Princess Louise will be the next to be sold. It is questionable whether the Joan and Elizabeth can be sold, and it is probable that they will be scrapped.

In my opinion what the CPR has in mind is to use the Marguerite and the Patricia in a summer service only, with its only American connection being Port Angeles, although it is possible that during the summer months the Seattle service will be continued.

All this, of course, is extremely unsatisfactory from the point of view of Greater Victoria. However, one must conclude that it is a matter of economics that the CPR cannot be expected to run ships at a loss, which is the inevitable result of high operating costs.

On the other hand, the provincial government is to be congratulated with regard to its proposed fast ferry connection between some point on the Saanich Peninsula and the mainland. These ferries probably will not be operated on a profitable basis but they will constitute something quite analogous to a toll bridge, and will constitute part of the highway system of the province.

Gorge Beauty

As a resident of Vancouver, but a property owner in Victoria by choice, I wish to express my gratitude and sincere thanks to the Kinsmen of Victoria and the municipality of Esquimalt for the wonderful effort they have made in trying to restore the Gorge Park to its former beauty.

I have always considered that Victoria has lost a great tourist attraction by not developing the Gorge Park. In past years the Gorge Park, officially known as the B.C. Electric Gorge Park, has been marked on tourist maps and brochures as a beauty spot of Victoria. Rather a disappointment to drive or taxi to a beauty spot and see an undeveloped waterway with bush and mud tracks. This neglect reflects upon all of Victoria.

Now it seems that only one municipality has professed assistance in the reconstruction of the park, whereas this beautiful spot could be developed for the convenience and profit of all Greater Victoria and, of course, all British Columbia. Assistance should be extended by the other municipalities of Victoria, all wealthier than Esquimalt, and also by the provincial government if it really has the welfare of Victoria at heart.

I hope that by next tax-paying time, which also coincides with holiday time, the Gorge will really get the beauty treatment it deserves.

Helpful Neighbors

Will you please allow us space in your column to express our heartfelt thanks to all our friends and neighbors who were so generous in giving us a "shower" on Monday evening. It is a terrible thing to lose one's home by fire but the love, sympathy and help which we have been surrounded has helped so much to assuage the grief.

Most especially we would like to mention the fine little girls on Wellington Avenue, who, of their own accord, held a bazaar and with the proceeds bought us a gift.

It is impossible to thank each person individually but we are indeed grateful to each and every donor and especially Mrs. N. Daggett, Mrs. R. McVie and Mrs. Ralph Calverwell, who, we understand, organized the shower.

Pearson Urges:

Ban Bomb Tests Despite No Pact

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition Leader Pearson said yesterday atomic bomb tests should be stopped for a period even though no international agreement is reached to ban test explosions.

He made the statement in the Commons after Health Minister Monteith reported on Canada's role in the work of the United Nations' scientific committee on the effects of atomic radiation. The report stated that any rise in the world level of radiation constituted a potential danger to the health of mankind.

Mr. Pearson said the UN report emphasizes the necessity of putting an end to nuclear tests.

Efforts were being made at Geneva to reach international agreement on a ban. However, even if such an agreement were not reached, consideration should be given to banning tests for a period.

No country would be able to violate an agreement of this kind without detection.

Fallout Rains For 10 Years

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Fallout from the last two stratosphere nuclear explosions above Johnston Island will rain down on the entire world for the next 10 years, a member of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission said Wednesday.

Dr. Willard F. Libby said it would take that long for the fallout at the rate of 10 per cent a year to be completed from any one explosion.

A siren is a good means of alerting traffic that sirens were not absolutely necessary clearing traffic in most circumstances, but no police car or ambulance worth.

The Winnipeg chief said, "Sirens are fine for open highways but not for built-up sections of a city. They give the (police) driver a false sense of security. Without a siren one must travel with more regard to traffic and the lives of others."

Chief Blackstock felt there were occasions on which police drivers used sirens where they about 1008 A.D.

Cheap Stocks

Give Spark

To Wall Street

NEW YORK (UPI) — Low

priced issues provided the spark that sent the stock market higher for the second straight session. Volume was moderate.

Chemicals as a group featured on the upside. Du Pont up around 2 points at its high. U.S. Borax, maker of exotic fuels for missiles and rockets, lost more than a point on poor earnings.

Most major groups favored the upside, although price changes were small for the most part and there was some irregularity in most of the group. Union Oil featured its group, rising more than 2 at its high on a late spurt. Polaroid was strong in the cameras and Westinghouse in the electrical equipment. American Motors

rose more than 1.

The rise came in the face of further signs of tight money and some adverse earnings reports. However, the improved picture in the Middle East and some favorable economic developments, such as a rise in personal income, helped to buoy the market.

A number of Wall Street

brokers noted that investors appear to have a touch of speculative fever, a factor which seems to be borne out by the type of trading.

Leading oil issues were fractionally higher. Aircraft moved narrowly. National lost a point in the non-ferrous metals following its price cut. Copper and aluminum issues were firm.

Stocks Hit High for Year

Rate Cut Boosts Market

By HARRY YOUNG

(Colonist Business Editor)

Lower short-term borrowing rates announced yesterday by the Bank of Canada were in part responsible for the strong action of leading Canadian stocks. The 20 industrials on the Toronto stock exchange average reached a new high for the year at 471.19.

The rediscount rate for the ensuing week is 1.41 per cent compared with 1.48 per cent and compared with 1.12 per cent of two weeks ago, when a new low record was established.

In London where the Bank of England rate was reduced from 5 per cent to 4½ per cent

the London Stock Exchange

average also went up to a 1958

high.

The new British bank rate is the lowest since February,

1955, and compares with the seven per cent rate of last September.

The British action indicates

June 30 it was $10,716,944.

The sterling position is operating profit before depreciation and pre-production write-offs was $7,833,321 for the half year and $4,885,362 for the second quarter.

BCE Buses Pay

VANCOUVER (CPI) — The

British Columbia Electric's

proposal to buy the BCE

bus and motor coach transit on the deal recently. "If British interests. The reported price is something under $20,000,000.

B.C. Electric officials have stated publicly they are anxious to sell the system. They say it hasn't made a profit since 1945.

And the British principals,

acting through 55-year-old

Timothy J. Manning, retired

anxious to buy Manning,

COULD MAKE MONEY

He predicts the B.C. Electric system could be converted to a money-maker in five years. He declined to identify the British principals but said "they are very responsible."

He added that they haven't bought a transit system yet that wasn't losing money.

The business paradox caused one Vancouver alderman to remark "there's something here that doesn't add up."

He told BCE vice-president

some 400 miles of routes.

Miss O'Sullivan

Last Rites For Native Victorian

Requiem mass was celebrated Monday in St. Andrew's Cathedral for Miss Anna O'Sullivan, who was born in Victoria in 1877 and lived in James Bay her entire life.

Burial followed in Ross Bay Cemetery.

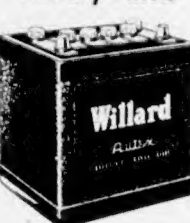

Miss O'Sullivan was the second youngest child of Humphrey and Eliza O'Sullivan, who arrived here in the early 1860s and raised seven daughters and a son.

The O'Sullivans had a farm near what is now Oswego Street extending from Michigan Street to Belleville.

After graduating with honors in 1895 from St. Ann's Academy, Miss O'Sullivan joined the old Canadian Pacific Navigation Company as secretary of the manager, the late Capt. John Irving, during the gold rush to the Klondike in 1898.

Saskatoon Rifleman Scores Triple Victory

CONNAUGHT RANGES, Ont. (CP) — W. E. (Ed) George, of Saskatoon, a popular and perennial competitor at these ranges near Ottawa, Thursday scored a triple win at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association matches.

He pumped 20 consecutive bullseyes to top 631 entries in the city of Ottawa match.

He won the grand aggregate challenge trophy for top scorer in seven major matches of the week-long meet with 725 points, the youngest shot in the 14.

He was also named winner of member British team at the annual service rifle meet here, highest total score in that day's main events.

"I must be the luckiest guy in the world," he said as he left the firing line after posting a perfect 100 score at 200 and 900 yards in the city of Ottawa.

Bankers, Macdougall, Macdonald, Connaught president's, city of Ottawa and the qualifying stage of the Governor-General's count for the grand aggregate, Christopher T. S. Reik, at 20.

UCLA's Red Sanders Dies of Heart Attack

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Henry (Red) Sanders, head football coach at the University of California at Los Angeles, died Thursday in a Los Angeles hotel. Sanders, 53, who made the UCLA Bruins one of the football powerhouses in the U.S., was found dead next to a bed in a room on a second floor.

Homicide Detective R. T. Ried said Sanders apparently died of a heart attack.

Sanders, who was coach of the year in 1954 when his Bruins shared honors with Ohio State as the No. 1 teams in the U.S., had just entered the hotel a few minutes before he was stricken.

his bid for a no-hitter in the sixth inning when Jerry Lynch lashed a sharp single to left field. Jay, who had trouble with his control, was lifted in the ninth in favor of Warren Spahn when he issued his eighth batter.

The victory, Jay's seventh against four setbacks, spoiled the managerial debut of Jimmy Dykes, who was handling the team in place of Birdie Tebbets who resigned earlier in the day.

In the American League, Vic Power created quite a stir despite the absence of a pennant race, stealing home twice as the Cleveland Indians edged Detroit Tigers, 10-9, in 10 innings.

Power, who stole home with the bases loaded and two out in the 10th inning after stealing home in the eighth, matched a 48-year-old major-league record.

Last time a player stole home twice in one game was in 1911 when Larry Doyle of New York Giants performed the feat. Only other player to do it was Joe Tinker of Chicago Cubs, who set the record in 1910.

Rocky Colavito, who had hit two home runs, was at the plate when Power broke for the plate and beat Frank Lary's throw.

'Concentrate On Forests'

OTTAWA (CP)—The bread the Prairies but in forest resources, Douglas Fisher (CCF) said yesterday in the Commons.

He urged Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton not to be so carried away with preoccupation for northern development that forest regeneration is overlooked.

And in the administration of forest resources he urged the minister not to be obsessed by fire-fighting and bug-killing, important as those activities are, but to concentrate on forest regeneration.

Controlled forest fires were a good thing in some instances, he said, in forest regeneration. Mr. Fisher spoke during consideration of northern affairs department estimates.

Burglar Goofs, Sentence Today

VANCOUVER (CP)—A burglar really goofed here Thursday. Herbert Jow, 32, had pleaded not guilty to breaking and entering the suite of Robert Carl, who identified Jow as one of the men who stole his wife's wallet.

"Are you sure it was me?" Jow queried, conducting his own cross-examination. Carl said he was sure. "How can you be sure," Jow asked.

He will be sentenced today.

University Gains in B.C.

Maybe B.C. hasn't come up with a centennial year Sputnik but the statistics show this province making big gains in educational levels.

University enrolment, for example, has increased from 1,896 in 1931-35 to 3,097 in 1941-45 and 5,957 in 1954-55 for a net gain of 215 per cent.

In the same period the U.S. enrolment jumped 111 per cent, and Canada, exclusive of B.C., went up 81 per cent.

The 1,896 undergraduates of 1934-35 represented 26 per cent of the province's population at that time. By 1955 the percentage had risen to 36 per cent and was still increasing.

B.C. also showed a gain as against the rest of the nation in the university population. In 1925, with 6.3 per cent of Canada's population, it had 6.5 per cent of university enrolment. By 1950, with 8.4 per cent of the population, it had 10 per cent of the university total.

In 10 years from 1943-44 term to 1953-54 term, the Grade 12 total jumped from 3,700 to 6,300 in the province. In relation to the over-all population that was a gain from 39 per cent to 53 per cent.

Jordan Pulls Out Rug From UN Police Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — "All I would say at the moment is that one of the most important things to do is to give some form of resolution which would definitely establish the responsibility of the UN for the Middle East."

At least temporarily late Thursday the relatively restrained atmosphere of the UN assembly's special session.

With President Eisenhower, Foreign Minister Gromyko and Foreign Secretary Lloyd having made their formal public pronouncements at the emergency meeting on big power policy in the current Middle East dispute, the way had appeared earlier to be clear for offstage negotiations among the interested powers at the foreign ministers' level.

WON'T AGREE

Then at Thursday's afternoon resumption of debate, Jordan's Ambassador Abdel Monem Rifai told the assembly flatly that under no circumstances would Jordan agree either to UN observer or military forces on its territory as a replacement for the protective British screen which moved into King Hussein's realm three days after the overthrow in adjoining Iraq.

"What Jordan needs and asks for is material assistance to reinforce its own army and security forces," Rifai declared.

LLOYD DEFENDED

The Jordanian delegate's attitude was understood to have caused some embarrassment to British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd who earlier had defended his country's intervention.

He called on the United Nations' emergency Middle East assembly to bring about "some form of effective action" for peace and security in the whole area.

Lloyd urged the interested powers to take up Russia's suggestion made by Foreign Minister Gromyko Wednesday for private consultations on the matter.

United right to exercise, with out interference from outside, the normal attributes of sovereignty," Lloyd said.

He praised President Eisenhower's long-term plan for the Middle East laid before the assembly at the opening of the debate Wednesday, saying it offered "fruitful ground for study and for action."

BACKING EXPECTED

Rifai had been expected to endorse Lloyd's submission, but his rejection of the whole principle of the world organization taking up protection responsibility was seen as an upset to preliminary attempts to bring about a UN settlement with mutual agreement by Russia and the U.S.

U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was trying, meanwhile, to whip up support for
